

Talk to the Press confidentiality agreement

1. Talk to the Press agrees that all details of the story, and all photos provided by the contributor, are confidential. The contributor understands however that Talk to the Press needs to be provided with pictures and details of the story beforehand in order that the said story can be valued, advised upon and ultimately marketed to the media.
2. Publication of any such information will not go ahead until Talk to the Press has arranged a formal deal and/or interview with a newspaper or magazine.
3. The contributor warrants that his/her account is true, and that she is not prevented by any reason from speaking about her experiences – for example, any legal proceedings relating to the events have since concluded.
